In which a Woman Tells the Truth about Herself

A Novel by an Anonymous Author. (Now in its Second Printing)

A remarkable disclosure of a woman's life experiences and aspirations. The author has published successful novels in recent years, but, for reasons obvious to all, the present work appears anonymously.

12mo, cloth, $1.50

The Vineyard

A New Novel by JOHN OLIVER HOBBES

As an analyst of the complicated conditions of English social life Mrs. Craigie is almost without a peer. This new book shows her at her best, and will be welcomed by her many American readers.

Illustrated. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

Dollars and Democracy

By Sir PHILIP BURNE-JONES, Bart.

With many illustrations from his own drawings.

A volume of friendly criticism and commendation, written out of the author's impressions of American social and public life obtained in his recent sojourn of a year in the United States.

Cloth, $1.25 net. Postage, 10 cents additional.

How to Know Oriental Rugs

By MARY BEACH LANGTON

A comprehensive and practical handbook at a popular price. With 12 colored plates, many illustrations in half-tone, and a map of the rug districts.

Cloth, decorated cover, $2.00 net. Postage, 15 cents additional.

THE MEMOIRS OF A BABY

By

JOSEPHINE DASKAM

With Sixty Pen-and-Ink Drawings by F. Y. Cory

Post 8vo, Ornamented Cloth, $1.50

Extracts from Adam's Diary

By MARK TWAIN

The volume purports to be authentic extracts from the diary of Adam begun shortly after the Creation. Adam's first impression of things are naively recorded. Speaking of Eve, he says: "The new creature with the long hair is a good deal in the way. I wish it would stay with the other animals." This droll and laughable journal is illustrated by F. Strothmann after the manner of the stone-age, the picturesque and strikingly funny hieroglyphics telling a humorous story of their own.

Post 8vo, Ornamented Cloth, $1.00

Greater America

By ARCHIBALD R. COLQUHOUN, F.R.G.S.

Author of "China in Transformation"

In this illuminating volume Mr. Colquhoun, the English scholar and traveller, has given a thorough account of America's territorial expansion—its beginning, growth, and progress. The author deals with the subject from an external, not an internal, standpoint. He shows the extension of American territory and its authority as a world power, and the effect of that expansion and authority upon the world at large. His account covers the Philippines, Hawaii, Puerto Rico, etc., and the effect upon them of American control. The work is constitutional rather than descriptive.

With Maps, Diagrams and Frontispiece Portrait of the Author. 8vo, Cloth, $2.50 net

Captured by the Navajos

By CAPTAIN CHARLES A. CURTIS, U. S. A.

A story of exciting adventures of two boys who accompany a regiment on its campaign against the Navajo Indians in New Mexico. Their attack and capture by the Indians, and ultimate rescue through the intelligence of "Vic," the regiment's pet dog, are among the incidents of the story. Captain Curtis has been an Indian fighter, and writes from a full knowledge of his subject.

Messrs. A. C. McCLURG & CO. direct the attention of the trade to the following important announcements:

A new McCutcheon book, BIRD CENTER CARTOONS, was published last Wednesday. It is uniform in general style with "Cartoons by McCutcheon," which was so successful last year, and bids fair to exceed even that in popularity.

ROBERT CAVELIER, the eagerly awaited romance of La Salle, by William Dana Orcutt, will be published April 9. Besides being a story of a particularly high standard, it is without doubt the most beautifully-made book of fiction of the year.

If you have not already placed your orders, you should do so at once. We have a large line of attractive advertising matter ready for both books. A. C. McClurg & Co., Chicago

NOTES IN SEASON.

BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY will publish shortly a novel of life of to-day entitled "The Grafters" by Francis Lynde, author of "The Master of Appleby." Railroads, newspapers, politics, corporations, bosses, gangs and all the bustling, contending forces about us are dealt with in a spirited and dramatic manner.

A. S. BARNES & Co. have in preparation besides the books already announced, "The Mothers' Manual," by Dr. Emelyn L. Coolidge, Visiting Physician of the Out-Door Department of the Babies' Hospital, N. Y., etc., and "Beauty Through Hygiene, Common-Sense Ways to Beauty and Health," by Dr. Emma E. Walker, member of the N. Y. Academy of Medicine, two volumes in The Woman's Home Library, edited by Mrs. Margaret E. Sangster; a new edition in two volumes revised to date of Barnes' "Popular History of the United States;" also, a new edition of "Battles of the American Revolution, a military history," by Gen. Henry B. Carrington.

HARPER & BROTHERS will publish on the 7th inst., "Memoirs of a Baby," by Josephine Daskam, said to be the funniest book that the author of "The Madness of Philip" has ever written, with illustrations by Miss F. Y. Cory; "Extracts from Adam's Diary, with photographic reproductions of the original diary carved on stone," by Mark Twain, illustrated by F. Strothmann; "Greater America," a comprehensive study of the United States as a world power, by Archibald Colquhoun; "The Easter Story," by Hannah Warner, who retells the story of Easter and the resurrection; also, "Captured by the Navajos," a stirring story for boys, by Captain Charles A. Curtis, U. S. A. They have in preparation "Kings and Queens I Have Known," by Helene Vacaresco, with illustrations; "The Poems of a Child," by Julia Cooley; a new story by Robert W. Chambers, entitled "In Search of the Unknown;" also, "Adventures of Buffalo Bill," by Colonel W. F. Cody, ("Buffalo Bill,") in the Harper's Young People Series.

MCCLURE, PHILLIPS & Co. publish this week Charles Wagner's new book of counsel to the family, "By the Fireside;" Hildegard Brooks's fantastic story of amateur anarchy, "Daughters of Desperation;" Gelett Burgess's and Will Irwin's amusing romance of roguery, "The Picaroons;" and Madame E. Maria Albanesi's story of English upper-class life, "Susannah and One Other." They will publish early this month Stewart Edward White's new book, "The Silent Places," a story of the Hudson Bay country, of which Mr. White has already written in his book, "Conjuror's House." It is the story of a great man-hunt and tells of the experiences of two Hudson Bay Co. hunters who are sent out to capture a defaulting Indian trapper. Their "trail" is a long and perilous one, fraught with many hardships. The Indian makes desperate efforts to escape his pursuers and strikes northward, even beyond the Arctic circle, into lands where there is no game, and brings both himself and the white men face to face with starvation. The book is full of the atmosphere of the north and the terrible silence of the frost-bound forests. There runs through the book a strange love story between an Indian girl and the younger of the two Hudson Bay Co. men. The author introduces also many characters that appear in "Conjuror's House" —Gallen Albert, the factor of Conjuror's House, and his daughter Virginia, among others.

Mrs. Bancroft was the wife of George Bancroft the historian, who was sent in 1846 as Minister to England by the United States. The letters which this volume includes were written home by Mrs. Bancroft, without any expectation of their ever being published. They are a delightful account of her social life, as a Minister's wife; they relate all the various entertainments given for them, the great people they met—not only diplomats and statesmen, but authors, artists, and great social lights.

A solitary young woman without friends or money makes up her mind suddenly to work her way around the world. She is a native of Switzerland but is living in Cracow, Austria, when she decides to spend ten years in her adventurous trip. She had enough money to carry her to Australia and held a teacher's certificate. The ship she first sails in is called Vorwärts (Forward), hence the title of her book. That she fulfils her purpose and has many interesting experiences in many out of the way parts of the world her book tells. Leaving Trieste in '92 she arrives in Boston in '99, spending a long time in this country.

The English artist Sir Burne-Jones spent a year recently in this country, living chiefly in New York City, although he made visits to Newport, Boston, Washington, Chicago and other leading cities. Unlike most Englishmen who visit us he saw much to admire and commend—with some things also that honestly bear criticism. His worl: offers his impressions of life here among the richest and the poorest, and abounds in clever pen and pencil pictures (both his own). He gives his views of travel in our "rush" hours, the American child, ice-water, cocktails, hot steam pipes, winter in New York, the women in New York, our baths, telephones, food, society, etc., etc.

Chamberlain, T: C., and Salisbury, Rollin D. Geology. In 2 v. v. 1, Geologic processes and their results. N. Y., H: Holt & Co., 1904. c. 19+654 p. il. O. (American science ser., advanced course.) cl., $4 net.

The purpose of the authors has been to present an outline of the salient features of geology, as now developed, encumbered as little as possible by technicalities and details whose bearings on the general theme are unimportant. They believe the subject is best approached by a study of the forces and processes now in operation, and of the results which these forces and processes are now bringing about. These topics are presented in v. 1, and prepare the way for the study of the history of past ages, which is outlined in v. 2. The work is intended primarily for nature students, and is designed to furnish the basis for a year's work in the later part of the college course.

Gives some account of the life of the author, and some history of the people amongst whom his lot was cast—their character, their condition, and their conduct before the war, during the war, and after the war. No man was in closer touch with Virginia affairs during the past seventy-five years than Dr. Claiborne. The esteem and confidence in which he has been held by her people is seen in the many honors that have been conferred upon him. He has been in the House of Delegates and the Senate of Virginia, and member of many medical societies, etc.

These "Relics" consist of a series of breezy, enlightening chapters upon incidents and objects connected with Ruskin's life, by his friend and official biographer, W. G. Collingwood. The author had exceptional opportunities to study his subject, and has profited by them. He it was who accompanied Ruskin upon many rambles and journeys, where together they criticised art or drew sketches from nature. Many of these sketches are here reproduced —some by Ruskin, and others by Collingwood.

This work was suggested to the compiler, Mrs. Colville, by a book entitled "The conduct of Sarah, Duchess of Marlborough, at the Court of Queen Anne," published in 1742. Mrs. Colville says she has attempted to throw a sidelight on the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries, introducing politics only where necessary to understand the sequence of events, or when intimately connected with the life of Sarah Jennings, Duchess of Marlborough, who is the central figure of the narrative.

Jennie Sussex, the daughter of Sir Fortescue Sussex, the last baronet of his race, is the central figure of an English novel. Young, pretty and gifted, but poor, Jennie's struggle for existence begins early in life. Her love affairs are the chief theme. Three men wish to marry her, and she accepts the least desirable, only to give him up in a short time, finding he is deceiving her, to pledge herself to another man she has little affection for. All the characters transfer their love with equal celerity, three at least marrying in haste and not their first love. The dialogue is clever, the character sketching admirable, and the incidents unexpected. The odd title is taken from Job: "He beholdeth not the way of the vineyards."

Lynn Barry is a lovely, energetic young woman, who assumes the sole responsibility of caring for her widowed mother and sisters and brother. Her efforts while often unsuccessful are suggestive and instructive and very true to life. She tries story-writing, candy-making and other things in turn. The family live on the outskirts of Brooklyn, and come close to an unpleasant experience with neighbors who are counterfeiters. A pretty love story and a happy ending, with its breezy, healthy atmosphere, recommend the book to all readers "young in heart."

Fraser, Mrs. Hugh. The stolen emperor. N. Y., Dodd, Mead & Co., 1904. 2+323 p. il. D. cl., †$1.50.

A story of old Japan and the imperial family of several centuries back. Few of the heirs to the throne in those days attained their majority, dying slowly of a mysterious sickness. The Regent of the book, a crafty, cruel old man loath to resign his power, found his match in one of his great captains, Kashima Daimyo, young and brave and equally ambitious. Their counterplotting results in the stealing of the baby emperor. His noble mother is a striking figure and it is to her efforts that her son owes his return to his people. Beautiful descriptions of the country, and pictures of the life of the Imperial Palace, are features of a most poetically conceived novel. Mrs. Fraser lived in Japan for some years, her husband having been British Minister in Tokio. She is an American, sister of F. Marion Crawford, and author of "Letters from Japan."

While cast in the form of fiction "The vanguard" is an authentic account of the queer people of Korea, taken from the life there of a young American missionary, whose identity is but thinly disguised. He is the leading character throughout, his own romance furnishing an offset to the darker scenes springing from his experience. There is humor too in his recital, and fine character presentation, the book offering in its entirety a very thorough description of the customs and habits of the people of "the hermit isle."

I: in which a woman tells the truth about herself. N. Y., Appleton, 1904. 4+363 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

A novel which is told in the first person. When introduced the heroine is an undeveloped girl who has been made to feel her own insignificance in a rather unpleasant way. Born of this awakening is a determination to create a career for herself; thereafter her movements are studied, and she gives careful consideration to dress and the accessories of the toilet, and notwithstanding she is married, becomes a finished coquette. This with other incidents of her vain and unwise course are faithfully described and analyzed, for the evident purpose of showing by contrast the difference in the later self which she depicts in the light of a new mental, moral and physical development.

Jackson, C: Ross. Quintus Oakes: a detective story. N. Y., G: W. Dillingham Co., [1904. Mr.] c. '04. 318 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

The name which gives title to the book stands for a great American detective. The story of which Mr. Oakes is the hero is told by Rodney Stone, a New York lawyer. He and another friend go with Oakes to Maine to solve the mysteries of an old colonial mansion. The tragic doings which have been enacted there had baffled the keenest brains, and at the time that the story opens had become so serious, that the estate, once so valuable, had been deserted by the heirs. The detective successfully unravels the secrets of the place in a most dramatic manner.

"Tinker" is a nickname bestowed upon the youthful son of an English baronet in reduced circumstances. The little fellow begins life under pitiful conditions—is stolen and ill treated, and found by his father in a miserable condition. Love and kindness make another boy of him and in time he shows himself rich in fun and the desire for adventure. He runs away with a flying machine, commandeers an automobile, usurps the captaincy of a steam yacht, rescues a kidnapped child, saves a lady from Italian brigands, adopts a sister, marries off his father—and these are only a few of his astounding escapades.

The purpose in telling the sad life story of a woman of very high ideals and irreproachable morals, is to illustrate the effect of divorce on the children involved, an issue of the question very seldom considered. The husband in the case is seemingly an exemplary man, who suppresses conscience, and makes a motion for divorce. The decree granted, the pair realize through their own suffering what they have unwittingly brought on their only boy. The action of both thereafter is unusual.

The Moses Brown of this interesting narrative was one of the great privateer captains who sailed from Newburyport in the Revolution. He was the hero of two important battles fought at this period, which have never before been described in any history to Mr. Maclay's knowledge. He now tells the history of them in most vivid style. Brown was captain of the General Arnold, a regularly commissioned American war-ship. Both actions in which his ship was a winner took place within a short distance of the coast of Portugal in 1779. Captain Brown afterwards served many years in the U. S. N., and was captain of the first Merrimack.

The author will be remembered as the New York Journal's war correspondent, who was almost fatally wounded during the Cuban campaign. He has given here a thrilling story of adventure, the scene shifting from South Africa to London, and coming to a dramatic climax on Cape Cod. The hero comes to England with a large fortune in uncut diamonds. His mother whom he has come to visit, dies suddenly, and there are complications about her will, and his bag of diamonds which he has assigned to her. He is about losing his property when he takes his gems and escapes from the London police. This is the beginning of a long chase and many exciting scenes.

Mr. Moody says in his introduction in "The truth about the trusts" a serious attempt is made, in a broad and general way, to turn on the light, and exhibit to the public view, not merely one phase nor one side, but the entire "phenomena" which goes under the general name of "the trust movement." The book is necessarily, to some extent, a simple uniform compilation of important facts, and description of conditions which actually exist. The author makes no attempt to draw upon his imagination, nor does he presume to moralize or sentimentalize regarding the justice or injustice of this or that condition. From first to last facts are pointed out, and simple, logical deductions are made from these facts. But while the reader must accept the facts, the fallibility of the conclusions must, of course, be judged by those who analyze them.

A letter, the first the young hero of twenty years had ever seen, came to a little farm-house in Illinois in the summer of 1812. It told the old farmer of a friend's child left an orphan in the garrison of Fort Dearborn and begged protection for her. The young son was sent in search of "my little girl" and suffered many hardships before he met the beautiful Toinette, and even more trouble in getting her back to the farm. The massacre of Fort Dearborn was the climax. Full of adventure, but true to history.

"The sole aim of this book," says Dr. Pierson, "is to awaken faith where it does not exist, and to strengthen and confirm it where it does; it is hoped, therefore, both to reach the honest doubter and to help believers, becoming the means of producing, or at least promoting, an intelligent and rational conviction that, in the Holy Scriptures we have God's living oracles, inspired by his Holy Spirit."

Zenger was the second New York printer; he established himself in 1726 and in 1733 began the publication of the second newspaper issued in New York. It was in tone opposed to the Royal Governor of the Province. Zenger was arrested, charged with seditious libel, upon information, the Grand Jury having failed to indict him. His trial excited great public interest, the verdict of not guilty being received with applause. The work gives an account of his life and trial, with two bibliographies: Bibliography of issues of the Zenger Press, 1725-1751, p. 133-169; and Bibliography of the trial of John Peter Zenger, p. 247-255.

The story of a typical Virginia family who go out to Missouri with their family slaves in the early fifties. A picture of life in the border counties, before, during and after the Civil War is presented. Order no. 11 was the command issued by the Union General, Thomas Ewing, ordering the homes in this part of Missouri abandoned. The family sinks to the lowest depths of poverty; the son of the house dies tended only by two faithful old slaves, the parents knowing nothing of either his marriage or his death till both are long past. The others return to their old home however, after the war, and the ending is happy.

The name of Arcady is well set in the title. The Arcady of this bachelor is a small farm nestling down by a river. Here he works when he feels like it, goes hunting, or takes long tramps, and leads a free and easy life unoppressed by social duties. He is particularly careful not to fall in the way of womankind, for he is convinced that here lies the secret of unrest. Nevertheless, the pitfall into which he falls at last is of his own digging.

In 31 v. v. 1, Journals of Conrad Weiser (1748), George Croghan (1750-1765), Christian Frederick Post (1758), and Thomas Morris (1764). Cleveland, O., Arthur H. Clark Co., 1904. c. 6-328 p. por. facsimiles, O. cl., per v., *$4 net, (except Maximilien atlas.)

This initial volume of a new series admirably epitomizes the history of the English relations with the French and Indians upon the Western borders during the important epoch of the last French War, and its sequel, Pontiac's Conspiracy. Of the authors, two (Weiser and Croghan) were government Indian agents; one (Post) was a Moravian missionary; and the other (Morris), was a British army officer. The experiences which they recount are as varied as were their avocations. Conrad Weiser was the first official of Pennsylvania to penetrate the country beyond the Allegheny Mountains; while his successor, George Croghan, summed up in his own career the history of the frontier. For fifteen years he was concerned in every important Indian negotiation, and his marked success in terminating the Pontiac War is told in a journal replete with unexpected incidents. A collection of the writings of this important actor in Western history has not before been made. The journeys of Christian Frederick Post, the Moravian missionary who was sent by Forbes as an envoy to the hostile tribes on the Ohio, are described by every writer of the period. The volumes are handsomely printed, with facsimiles of the original title-pages, maps, portraits, views, etc. An elaborate index to the whole work will occupy the concluding volume.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

APRIL 2, 1904.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalogue" and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE LITERARY INTELLIGENCE OF BOOK CLERKS.

PERIODICALLY there is heard more or less lamentation that the bookseller's literary intelligence is not up to the standard of that which obtained among booksellers of former generations. Possibly this is in a measure true of the present generation, just as it may have been true, in the same degree, of the booksellers of generations, aye centuries, ago. The complaint is not a new one; indeed, it was known in the days of Plantin and Aldus, and, no doubt, even before their day.

There are, we regret to admit, many ignoramuses in the ranks of the booktrade, and little wonder, for with the reduction of the profits in the business, and that scramble to make a bare living which has necessitated the introduction into bookstores of all sorts of unliterary by-products, the booktrade has only in rare cases yielded profits enough to enable the bookseller to surround himself with expert help, or to induce wide-awake and enterprising young men to associate themselves with him. Yet, notwithstanding all these facts, it is encouraging to find that so many of the book clerks of the present generation actually maintain a very high standard of literary intelligence, as is evidenced at the monthly gatherings of the Booksellers' League, and as was shown at the recent talks of the clerks at the informal dinner given by the Pittsburg (Pa.) Booksellers' and Stationers' Association.

Of necessity, the bookseller who wishes to hold his own in these days must be even better versed in all information which the book-buyer may desire than the bookseller of twenty-five years ago felt obliged to be. The buyer of to-day is much better posted than was his forefather, knows the market better, and insists upon more prompt and better service, hence the bookseller must not only possess knowledge of books or have at hand the means of obtaining it, but must also be alert and prompt in attendance. As one of the Pittsburg men pointed out, it is not necessary that the book clerk be a general catalogue. If he can accomplish so phenomenal a feat so much the better; but he should by all means become a stock book—that is, he should know what is in the store and where it may be found in an instant. The thousands of other books may be hunted for in catalogues, of which every bookstore should have all the more important ones handy for reference. No bibliography is so unimportant that it will not at some time—often at the most unexpected moment—pay for itself twice over; therefore every bookseller should be intent to supply himself from time to time, as he can afford it, even with what he may consider luxuries in the way of trade tools.

A reputation for knowledge of books and prompt service will hold trade time and again against the tricks of the undersellers. There are hundreds of buyers, to say the least, who would scarcely feel honest in saving a dime at the underseller's shop, or a quarter by writing to the book centers at nearly a quarter's worth of trouble, if the bookseller has put them under obligations by his readiness and courtesy in furnishing information they have previously desired. In fact, it is not only to actual purchasers of a book that the bookseller should be glad to furnish information; he should be specially eager to welcome new callers and to give them all the information he can, even at no immediate pecuniary return. The time will come when these very people may often prove the best customers to those booksellers who have best fitted themselves to serve them.

HOW TO HANDLE "CRANK" CUSTOMERS.*

THERE are several rules whereby the crank customer may be handled in a manner not to give offence, which is of the greatest importance. As a rule the crank has some very decided ideas of his own as to what he wants, and as to what would be a good thing for every one else to have, and I would therefore advise the clerk not to disagree with him. If he says he has a certain book, or a form that is a good thing—we are now talking of the crank in the stationery trade—show an interest in it; ask him a few questions, and leave him under the impression that he knows a good thing when he sees it, and that his ideas are good.

Don't contradict the crank if you want his money. Let him talk, and after he is through you can get in your work without much trouble.

Don't argue with the crank if you want his business. Let him have his own way—apparently—and you will find he is not so bad a fellow after all.

There is the crank who comes into the store with a rush, and is hardly inside when he may be heard all over the house with "Where are all your clerks? I never come in here that I don't have to wait five or ten minutes. If I can't get waited on more promptly I will go somewhere else." But he never goes anywhere else. When he wants anything in our line he is back again with the same old cry. This sort of a crank likes to be well thought of; he likes to think that he has made an impression on the entire force as to his importance. Above all, treat him nicely; call him by his name, ask his opinion on some of the questions of the day, and give him the impression that he is a very important member of the business world, and you will find you can get along with him without much trouble.

Then there is the crank who always wants something different from any one else, and wonders why the manufacturers and dealers don't try to supply the needs of the public better. As a rule he is good-natured enough, and only needs to be "jollied" a little to get him into a reasonable frame of mind.

I remember a customer whom the clerks always avoided if possible. He certainly was a man from whom it seemed almost impossible to get civil treatment. He appeared to have soured on the entire world. It frequently fell to my lot to wait on him. One day while waiting on him an instructor in one of our gymnasiums, from whom I had taken instructions some fifteen years before, came in. He spoke to my customer and also to me. My customer and he talked for a few minutes, when my customer mentioned his son, who was dead, and who had taken lessons in physical training from the instructor. The "gym" teacher turned to me and said: "Mr. Cooper, you remember our friend's son; he was a member of your class." I could not recall him, and think he must have joined the class after I left. The old gentleman turned to me, and calling his boy by name, talked of him tenderly, telling me what a fine boy he was and how much he missed him since he died. After that I never had any trouble with the man; his weakness was his love for his boy, and the simple fact that he thought I had been an associate of his beloved son made a big difference in his behavior towards me afterwards.

You will find it true of almost all cranks that they have some weak spot; if you can find that spot the victory is won, and you will have a friend instead of a "crank" to deal with.

TERCENTENARY OF THE PUBLICATION OF "DON QUIXOTE."

THE tercentenary of the first publication of Cervantes's "Don Quixote" is to be celebrated at Madrid in the spring of 1905. It is intended to make the occasion, as far as possible, one of a national character. Statues are to be erected to his honor in all the cities and towns in which Cervantes resided; his bust is to be placed in every school in Spain, and arrangements are being made to publish a national edition of "Don Quixote." Special fêtes, processions and theatrical performances are also included in the programme.

It was while at Valladolid, where Cervantes formed one of the large number of starving soldiers and needy writers expectant of preferment which then filled the court of Philip III., that the manuscript of "Don Quixote" was completed. Disappointed in his hopes of preferment, Cervantes was reduced to the utmost straits of poverty, eking out a living by business agencies and humble literary employment, such as writing petitions and correcting manuscripts, aided by such small gains as the ladies of his household were able to earn by the labors of the needle. The first part of "Don Quixote" was ready for press in the beginning of 1604, about the time that the majority of Shakesperian critics have assigned to the first appearance of the second and perfect "Hamlet." A patron being in that age as necessary to an author as a publisher, Cervantes with some difficulty found one in the Duke de Bejar, a nobleman of high rank and honor, ambitious of the name of a Macænas. The license for publication was secured on the 20th of September, 1604, and in the beginning of the next year the first part was printed at Madrid by Juan de la Cuesta, and published by Francisco de Robles, to whom Cervantes had sold the copyright for ten years. The book seems to have been successful from the beginning, no fewer than six impressions of the first edition of 1605 being extant, of which two were issued at Madrid, two at Valencia, and two at Lisbon. All these editions swarm with blunders of the most extraordinary kind, proving that Cervantes could never have revised the printing, even if he had looked through his manuscript before committing it to press. Even in the second edition, published in 1608, and revised by the author, a great many obvious blunders were suffered to stand, over which Cervantes himself makes merry in the second part.

The fame acquired by the publication of the first part of "Don Quixote" does not appear to have contributed materially to the improvement of its author's fortunes. In 1605 he was still living at Valladolid, earning his living by writing and general agency, assisted by his wife, his natural daughter, Isabel, then over twenty years old, his widowed sister, Andrea, with her daughter, Constanza, and another sister, Magdalena, with one female servant. In 1606 he followed the court to Madrid, where, in 1608, he published the second edition of the first part of "Don Quixote," with corrections and additions, that completed the work. During the closing years of his life he was supported chiefly by a pension from the archbishop of Toledo, and casual gratuities from his other patron, the Count de Lemos. On the 23d of April, 1616, in his sixty-ninth year, Cervantes ended, in all serenity and cheerfulness, his life of many troubles. In the same year, and nominally on the same day, though really ten days later, allowance being made for the difference of calendars, died William Shakespeare in England.

According to a computation made by Don Lope de Fabra, in his appendix to the Barcelona facsimile of the first edition, there were published, up to 1874, 278 editions of "Don Quixote," of which 87 appeared in Spain and 191 in other countries. Of these 136 are in the original. Translations have appeared in every European tongue, including Turkish. Since then the number has been greatly swelled by different versions and translations. Especially has the literature on the subject grown during the past twenty-five years.

FIGHT OVER "L" NEWSSTANDS IN NEW YORK.

Henry Tietjen, the newsdealer who was ousted from the stand at the corner of Park Place and Church Street, where he has been for nearly ten years, has succeeded in regaining it, and will remain there until the courts decide otherwise.

The fight over Tietjen's stand is being made a test case by the Newsdealers' Association, and if it is won they will take up the cases of dealers Schwarz and Seidman, who have places under elevated stations on West Broadway. Both these men have been treated in a manner similar to Tietjen. Other dealers in the district are also being threatened with eviction, all because, as is alleged, politicians desire to use the newsstand privileges for political purposes.

A petition is being circulated asking Mayor McClellan to put a stop to the political traffic in newsstands. The petition asks that when applications for newsdealers' licenses come to the License Bureau that inquiry be made if they are from men who have never held licenses before, and, if so, that an investigation be made to see why the dealer now holding the privilege should be removed. It is also suggested that dealers do not have to pay more than the license fee prescribed by ordinance and that they be told that they can appeal to the Mayor for relief at any time. The fee is $10 a year, yet in some cases dealers claim that they have been obliged to give up as much as $10 a week in order to hold their stands.

A FIRST FOLIO SHAKESPEARE FOR $2325.

At the sale of the library of the late Sir Thomas Dawson Brodie, at Sotheby's, March 3-8, a copy of the first folio edition of Shakespeare's plays was bought by Maggs Brothers for £465. The copy was not a very attractive one, the leaf of verses opposite the title-page, the letterpress of the title-page, the leaf "To the Memorie," and a corner of the last leaf being in facsimile; the other preliminary leaves were restored in the margins, and the last five leaves were mended in the blank portions. The binding, by Francis Bedford, was crushed red morocco in the Roger Payne style. The portrait, which was inlaid, was an original impression. However, despite its faulty state it is the best example of the book which has been publicly offered for sale in some time. The same copy brought only £90 at the F. S. Ellis sale in 1885.

OBITUARY NOTES.

Franklin Harper, son of J. Abner Harper, formerly connected with the subscription department of Harper & Brothers, died March 28, at New Windsor, near Newburg, N. Y., aged forty-seven.

Samuel Gordon, one of the oldest newsdealers in Brooklyn, N. Y., died March 27, of the effects of a fall he received a week ago while on his newspaper route. He came from Ireland forty years ago, and had since been selling papers in the Fifth Ward, Brooklyn.

Richard Voorhees Risley died on March 30, at the residence of his father, 14 East Twenty-ninth Street, New York City, in his twenty-ninth year. He was educated at Lehigh, and also studied in Germany and Paris while his father was abroad as minister. He was the author of many magazine articles, essays, poems and several novels and plays. Among his books are "The Sentimental Vikings," "Men's Tragedies," "The Sledge" and "The Anvil."

Cornelia G. Willis, widow of Nathaniel Parker Willis, died at the residence of her son, Bailey Willis, in Washington, D. C., March 26, of old age and general debility. Mrs. Willis was born in New Bedford, Mass., in 1825, and was the daughter of Joseph Grinnell, who during the forties was one of the most prominent men in Congress, and the founder of Grinnell, Minturn & Co., one of the oldest mercantile establishments of New York City. She was married to Mr. Willis in 1847, and lived with him for many years at "Idlewild," near Newburgh-on-the-Hudson. After the death of her husband, in 1867, she spent most of her time in Washington at the home of her son, an officer of the United States Geological Survey.

Sir Edwin Arnold, poet, editor and Oriental scholar, died in London, March 24. Sir Edwin was born at Whartons, Framfield, Sussex, June 10, 1832. He was graduated from Oxford in 1854, and became second master in the English division of King Edward VI. School, in Birmingham. From that he went to India in 1856 to be principal of the Government Sanscrit College at Poona in the Bombay Presidency. In 1861 Mr. Arnold returned to England and secured a place on The Daily Telegraph, of which he became chief editor in 1876. It was he who arranged for the expedition of George Smith to Assyria, and in conjunction with the New York Herald for that of Henry M. Stanley to Africa to complete the discoveries of Livingstone, in 1874. In 1851 he published his first poem, "The Feast of Belshazzar," which won for him the Newdigate Prize. This was followed by a volume of collected poems in 1853; "Griselda: a Tragedy," in 1856; "The Wreck of the Northern Belle," a poem, in 1857; a letter on "Education in India;" "The Book of Good Counsel, from the Sanskrit of Hitopadésa;" a "History of the Administration of British India under the late Marquis of Dalhousie;" "Hero and Leander," in 1873; "The Indian Song of Songs, from the Sanskrit," 1875; also, a transliteral grammar of the Turkish language, in 1877. "The Light of Asia," being the life and teachings of Gautama, published in 1879, was his most popular or rather best-known book. The titles of his other books published from 1881 to 1888 are "Indian Poetry," "Pearls of the Faith," "Indian Idylls," "The Song Celestial," "The Secret of Death," "India Revisited," "Lotus and the Jewel," "Death and Afterwards," "With Sa'di in the Garden," and "The Iliad and Odyssey of India." In 1891 he published "The Light of the World," in which he attempted to do for the life of Christ what he had done for that of Buddha, but the work was not so well received as "The Light of Asia." Sir Edwin continued his literary work until quite recently, though in his latest years he was stricken with paralysis and blindness. He was thrice married, his second wife being Miss Fanny Channing, daughter of the Rev. W. H. Channing, of Boston, and his third wife a Japanese, Tama Kurokawa. In 1877, when Queen Victoria was proclaimed Empress of India, he was made a Companion of the Star of India. Later he became a Knight Commander of the Indian Empire. In 1889 he travelled extensively in the United States. He is survived by six children. One son, Edwin Lester Arnold, is well known as an author.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

John Morley has definitely abandoned the writing of the "Life of Chatham" in the series of Twelve English Statesmen. The volume has been undertaken by Frederic Harrison, and it will probably appear next year.

Professor Albert Smyth is about to visit England in search of unedited materials for a complete edition of the writings of Benjamin Franklin, to be published simultaneously in England and America in January, 1906, on the 200th anniversary of Franklin's birth. It will be in ten volumes, and will be published by the Macmillan Company.

According to Dr. Robertson Nicoll, S. G. Tallentyre, the author of the "Life of Voltaire," recently published in this country by G. P. Putnam's Sons, is the pseudonym of Miss E. V. Hall, daughter of Canon Hall, the rector of St. Clement's Church, Eastcheap, London. Miss Hall was the sister-in-law of the late Henry Seton Merriman, who bequeathed to her $25,000 "in recognition of the literary services she had done him by her advice and criticism."

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

The Advance Publishing Company, Birmingham, Ala., will begin in May the publication of a new monthly periodical for young people. As yet no name has been selected for the magazine, and the publishers offer a prize for the most appropriate title suggested.

The Arena magazine has been purchased by Albert Brandt, of Trenton, N. J., and B. O. Flower, who was the founder of The Arena, and for seven years its sole editor, is again to take entire editorial management. Under Mr. Flower's direction The Arena attained a monthly circulation exceeded by but one competitor among the original high-priced reviews of opinion in America, and it is the belief of the new publisher that soon The Arena will be as strong and influential as it was in the early nineties.

BUSINESS NOTES.

Boston, Mass.—George W. Humphrey, dealer in old books, has removed to 21 Bromfield Street.

Boston, Mass.—The News Clearing House has been incorporated with a capital of $25,000, to publish books, etc.

Boston, Mass.—The Robinson, Luce Company have removed to 209 Washington Street, where they have a suite of offices on the second floor.

Kutztown, Pa.—A. S. Christ succeeds to the book, stationery and printing business of his father, Isaac F. Christ, who established the business in 1870, and now retires from active business to take a well-earned rest. His son, who has grown up with the business, is well known as an energetic and enterprising merchant.

Louisville, Ky.—We regret to hear of the death of Charles T. Dearing, at the age of fifty-two. Mr. Dearing had long been identified with the book business in Kentucky, and was widely known for his public spirit and generosity.

Mason City, Ia.—D. B. Hernott has bought the book and stationery business of Frank Zeh.

New Haven, Ct.—The New York and Eastern News Company, J. H. Schuyler, superintendent, has removed its general office to 105 Meadow Street.

New York City.—Hinds & Noble have completed negotiations by which the plant and business of Eldredge & Brother, of Philadelphia, are joined to the publishing business of Hinds & Noble, and incorporated as Hinds, Noble & Eldredge, with general offices and ware rooms at their present address, 31-35 West Fifteenth Street, New York. Hinds & Noble have not included in this consolidation their business as wholesalers and retailers of general school books of all publishers, but continue that business as heretofore at the Fifteenth Street address.

Springfield, Ill.—Fiske & Co., booksellers, have become incorporated under the same style.

Troy, N. Y.—H. F. Hastings has been succeeded by Pafraets.

Washington, D. C.—James F. Meegan, dealer in standard, choice and rare books, has opened a store at 436 Ninth Street, N. W., and would be pleased to have catalogues of second-hand books.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

WOLCOTT'S BOOKSHOP, Syracuse, N. Y., will publish shortly a volume of verse by William Cowie, ex-mayor of Syracuse, to be entitled "Latter-Day Poems."

ROBERT GRIER COOKE, New York, announces that the advance demand for Frances Aymar Mathews's striking book, "A Little Tragedy at Tien-Tsin," necessitated making the edition twice as large as originally planned. The sale of the book since published is beyond the most sanguine expectation of both author and publisher.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY announce that Onoto Watanna's new novel, "Daughters of Nigo," has been unavoidably postponed until April 13. They publish this week a new "Life of Dante Gabriel Rossetti," in the English Men of Letters series, by Arthur Christopher Benson, son of the late Archbishop of Canterbury.

A. WESSELS COMPANY have secured an American edition of "A Brief History of Old English Porcelain and its Manufactures," by M. F. Solon, author of "The Art of the Old English Potter." While the information is guaranteed to be absolutely reliable, the treatment of the matter is such as to make the book interesting also to those who are not collectors. The volume has 20 full-page colored plates and 74 collotypes in tint.

LITTLE, BROWN & CO. publish to-day the first book by Anne Warner, a Western author, entitled "A Woman's Will. They will publish on the 9th inst. Lucy Meacham Thruston's new novel, "Where the Tide Comes In;" a novel by Anna Chapin Ray, entitled "By the Good Sainte Anne," which has for its background the many places of interest in and around Quebec; also, a collection of stories by Sienkiewicz, entitled "Life and Death."

AN interesting sequel of the publication of "Harmon's Journals" in The Trail-Makers Series, issued by A. S. Barnes & Co., was the receipt of a letter from the youngest and only living child of the old fur trader. Harmon spent nearly the first twenty years of the last century among the Indians of the Northwest, and his journal was first prepared for publication in 1820. His daughter is now living in Canada, and she states that she has the original manuscript of the book.

THE OUTLOOK COMPANY has made arrangements with The History Association of London to bring out an American edition of "The Historian's History of the World," a comprehensive narrative of the rise and development of nations, based on the works of over two thousand of the great writers of every age, edited, with the assistance of a board of advisers and contributors, by Dr. Henry Smith Williams. The work will be complete in twenty-five fully illustrated volumes, to be sold by subscription.

"FIRST-CLASS MEN," a military novel, was confiscated in the Berlin book stores on the 22d ult. It is supposed that proceedings will immediately be initiated against the author of the book, Count Wolff Baudisin. The Socialists in the Reichstag recently taunted the Minister of War with inactivity in this case, saying that every child in Berlin knew that the book referred to the crack Fusileer Guards Regiment, the officers of which are depicted as immoral, corrupt and despicable. It is supposed that Count Wolff Baudisin will try to establish the truthfulness of his charges.

L. C. PAGE & CO. will publish at once in their attractive Little Pilgrimage Series a volume by Josephine Tozier, entitled "Little Pilgrimages Among English Inns." Miss Tozier has been over the ground many times, and her descriptions are vivid and sympathetic. The book is reminiscent of Black's best bits in "The Journey of a House-Boat," and is one of the best volumes included in the series. The illustrations are from photographs taken by the author and give delightful views of rural England, its old inns, castles and picturesque places in the old towns.

THE Association of Publishers of Private Christmas Greeting Cards held its second annual meeting at Armfield's Hotel, Finsbury, London, on March 7. The president, Mr. Adolf Tuck, reported that the association has every reason to be proud of its success. During the last year not a single complaint with regard to underselling reached the Council from any of the 10,810 retail dealers who now belong to the Association; nor had any of the 91 wholesale members any complaints to make. The income during 1903 was £976, the expenses £784, leaving a balance of £190.

IT is announced that the manuscript of Milton's "Paradise Lost," which was offered for sale at public auction on January 25, but which was withdrawn because the reserve price of £5000 was not offered, has now been sold to an American collector, whose name and the amount paid are not disclosed. The London Daily Telegraph editorially expresses regret that the heirloom was not preserved for the British nation, and says: "Let us be thankful that Westminster Abbey and St. Paul's Cathedral are not portable, for otherwise they would be purchased by an American millionaire."

THE LOTHROP PUBLISHING COMPANY will publish about the middle of April the third of the group of war novels by George Cary Eggleston, to be entitled "Evelyn Byrd," in which some of the characters in "Dorothy South" and "The Master of Warlock" will appear. They have in active preparation "Dorris Farrand's Vocation," by Mrs. G. R. Alden, and four books for young people—"Looking for Alice," by W. B. Smith; "Laura in the Mountains," by Mrs. Eliot; "When Grandmamma Was Fourteen," by Marion Harland, and "Five Little Peppers and Their Friends," by Margaret Sidney.

A. C. MCCLURG & CO. have just ready John T. McCutcheon's new book of cartoons, "Bird Center Cartoons," which is by far funnier than anything this clever artist has ever done, and he has produced some exceedingly clever work. They will publish on the 9th inst. William Dana Orcutt's romance of La Salle, entitled "Robert Cavalier," which, besides being a story of particularly high standing is also a very handsome book typographically. Randall Parrish's story, "When Wilderness Was King," published on March 26, the publishers report, was an instant success. Ten thousand copies were sold before the day of publication and a second large edition is in press.

FUNK & WAGNALLS COMPANY have just published a volume entitled "Russia at the Bar of the American People," a collection of records and documents relating to the Kishinef massacres, brought together and edited by Dr. Isidore Singer. A large part of the book contains one of the most important contributions of the last two decades to the solution of the Jewish problem. In Chapter v., entitled "The Judgment of Gentile Russia," thirty-four of the most eminent Russian statesmen, generals, church dignitaries and economists, ranging chronologically from 1772, the very year of the first annexation of Poland, down to 1904, plead for the emancipation of the Jews in Russia. They have also just ready "Essays and Letters," by Leo Tolstoy, translated by Aylmer Maude.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS will publish on the 23d inst. a popular "American Natural History," by W. T. Hornaday, director of the New York Zoological Park, with 227 drawings by Beard, Rungius and others, and reproductions of 116 photographs, also a number of charts and maps. They have in press "Great Englishmen of the Sixteenth Century," by Sidney Lee, which will contain the lectures delivered by Mr. Lee during his tour of American universities last spring. After an opening chapter on "The Renaissance in England," the book treats in order of Sir Thomas More, Sir Philip Sidney, Sir Walter Raleigh, Edmund Spenser, Francis Bacon, Shakespeare's life, and Shakespeare's work. Six portraits will illustrate the book.

HERBERT S. STONE & CO. will publish next month a new novel entitled "The Highroad." It will be published anonymously, but its subtitle, "The Autobiography of an Ambitious Mother," explains in a measure its scope. It is said to be a study of the worldly American widow—the woman of the small town who in adapting herself adroitly to her environment gradually rises above it. She has too much tact to be flashy, and too much cleverness to be brilliant, but she knows how to get what she wants. "The World's Painters," by James William Pattison, is about ready for publication. It has been delayed by the difficulty of securing just the right illustrations. The book carries its narrative down to the present day. For this reason it will be especially valuable, as few books of the kind touch contemporary painters.

LONGMANS, GREEN & CO. have just ready a continuation of the Rev. Dr. J. Franck Bright's "History of England," period v., covering the imperial reaction from 1880 to 1901, with maps and plans; "The Black Blocks of China," by R. Logan Jack, a narrative of experiences among the Chinese, Sifans, Lolos, Tibetans, Shans and Kachins, between Shanghai and the Irrawaddi, with illustrations and maps; "The United States and Porto Rico," with special reference to the problems arising out of our contact with the Spanish-American civilization, by Professor Leo S. Rowe, of the University of Pennsylvania, chairman of the Commission to Revise and Compile the Laws of Porto Rico; also, "Eighty Years' Reminiscences," by Colonel Anstruther Thomson, a book that will appeal to every lover of horse and hound.

J. F. TAYLOR & CO., New York, will publish shortly a new book by Albert Bigelow Paine, author of "The Van Dwellers," entitled "The Commuters, a story of a little hearth and garden." The book describes how a little family founded a home, and again introduces the characters that delighted the readers of "The Van Dwellers." The book is full of humor and made attractive by illustrations by Florence Scovel Shinn. They have brought out new editions of "Ten Girls from Dickens," with a new attractive cover; "Mother Goose and Others in Wall Street," which will interest the reader whether he has stocks on a margin or not; a new illustrated edition of "Among the Palms," Nina Larré Duryea's stories of old St. Augustine and the Southern Coast; also, an illustrated edition of "Everyman" with an artistic cover showing Miss Matthison in the title role.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & CO. publish to-day a new volume by Lafcadio Hearn, entitled "Kwaidan: Stories and Studies of Strange Things," which illustrate that wonder-loving tendency of the Japanese which the American public has lately enjoyed in such plays as "The Darling of the Gods;" "William Hickling Prescott," by Rollo Ogden, whose work is a study rather of a personality than of a historian; "The Frontiersmen," by Charles Egbert Craddock, stories of the early pioneers in the country that is now Tennessee; "The Fire-Bringer," by William Vaughan Moody, a bold dramatic poem, in which the author tells the story of Prometheus, the Fire-Bringer; "The Views about Hamlet, and Other Essays," by Professor Albert H. Tolman, of the Chicago University; also, Chaucer's "The Parlement of Foules," in the Riverside Press edition limited to 325 copies of which 300 only are for sale.

THE BROADWAY PUBLISHING COMPANY, New York, will publish shortly a work entitled "Domestic Slave Trade of the Southern States," by Winfield H. Collins, of the faculty of Claremont College, Hickory, N. C. Beginning with a sketch of the rise of the trade in slaves to the Southern States, the author considers the cause of the rise and development of domestic slave trade, kidnapping and selling of free negroes into slavery, slave prisons, markets, etc., and the laws of the Southern States with reference to the importing and exporting of slaves. They have in preparation a volume entitled "In the Grip of the Expert," by Ebbert T. Bush, which contains the hitherto unknown facts of a murder case which created intense feeling throughout the country not long since, and around which great mystery has hung; "The White Canoe," a group of Ojibway legends told by the Indians to the author, Mrs. Charles J. Monckton, with facsimile reproductions from pyrographic drawings on birch bark; also, a child's book by Elizabeth Lesser, entitled "Just a Little Tag," with drawings by the author.

THE SCOTT-THAW COMPANY, New York, will publish shortly a translation, by Miss Louise Ashley Billings, of Gustav Frenssen's remarkable novel, "Jörn Uhl," a psychological study of extraordinary power that has attained a circulation in Germany of nearly a quarter of a million copies; "The Story of a Gentleman," by William Sage, author of "The Claybournes," etc., who traces the trials and fortunes of a chivalrous and self-sacrificing French nobleman who begins a new life in America; and "The Quality of Youth," a romance of the 18th century, by Evan Shipman, author of "D'Arcy of the Guards," with six illustrations by L. L. Rousch. They also announce two books by Joseph E. Bishop, chief of the editorial staff of the New York Globe. One of these will be entitled "Our Political Drama," and will treat of the rise and progress of political conventions, campaigns and inaugurations, illustrated with reproductions of early caricatures; the other will be a series of essays on important questions of the day, entitled "Issues of the New Epoch," dealing with our work as a civilizer, Cuba, the Philippines, Porto Rico, Panama, the Negro Question, the Coal Strike and Legislatures, etc.

D. APPLETON & Co. have just ready a work on "College Training and the Business Man," by Charles F. Thwing, president of Western Reserve University, who, in a large way, attempts to prove and to illustrate the advantage which the man who enters business receives from going to college. The question is considered not simply as a theory, but also is examined in the light of the testimony of a number of business men of the United States. The advantage which a college education gives to a man in the business of railroading, banking and insurance, as well as in general administration, is carefully and fully considered. But though the volume is designed to show the advantage which the college may give to the business man, it does not omit the consideration of the worth of a liberal education to a man simply as a man. For the purpose of the college is not simply to make a useful merchant, but to make a better character. They will publish in June a new book on "Multiple Personality," by Boris Sidis, author of "The Psychology of Suggestion." It describes the case of arrested mentality and double consciousness of a man named Hanna. It is stated that not only will the volume appeal to the medical and the psychological student, but also to the reader of general intelligence, for the author describes other cases of double or multiple personality with clearness and interest.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS publish this week the third and concluding volume of John Boyd Thacher's sumptuous work on "Christopher Columbus, his Life, his Work, his Remains;" "An Introduction to the New Testament," by Professor Adolf Jülicher, of the Marburg University, translated by Janet Penrose Ward, with an introduction by Mrs. Humphry Ward; "Matthew Arnold and his Relation to the Thought of Our Time," an appreciation and a criticism, by William Harbutt Dawson; an interesting work on "Landscape Gardening," by Samuel Parsons, Jr., Superintendent of Parks in New York City, very attractively illustrated; also, a volume on "Physical Training for Women by Japanese Methods," by H. Irving Hancock, with illustrations showing students of the women's Jiu-Jitsu course at their actual work. They announce for immediate publication a Campaign edition of the "Addresses and Presidential Messages of Theodore Roosevelt, 1902-1904," with an introduction by Senator Henry Cabot Lodge. They also announce for early publication a work of the first importance in "The Republican Party," by Francis Curtis, giving a history of the fifty years' existence of the Republican political organization, together with a record of its measures and its leaders, with a foreword by President Roosevelt. They have arranged to publish the pamphlet entitled "Mr. Roosevelt and the Presidency," an ingeniously convincing campaign document by "A Spectator," the first edition of which attracted considerable attention and was exhausted while the demand was on the increase. They have also in preparation "What Handwriting Indicates," by John Rexford, the special feature of which will be a series of convenient analytical tables which demonstrate the significance of any trick or style of handwriting.

PICK-UPS.

W. I. WHITING, author of "Hardscrabble," etc., and the presiding genius over the "Treasure House of Americana," in the basement of 62 New Street, New York, makes the following announcement of his new epic:

"My Wall Street Poem, latest LAY,
At present in the INCUBATOR,
Will publish some September day,
Or possibly a little later.
And Saints or sinner, each one Orter,
Secure a copy for a ¼."

VENICE AND ITS DEPARTED GLORY.—"Venice, City of the Doggies," remarked a lady visitor, turning over the new books on a Philadelphia bookseller's counter. "How cute!" You may send me up a copy with my other books." And she swept gracefully out of the door and into her carriage, evidently much pleased with her latest purchase.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted" book-trade subscribers are given the privilege of a free advertisement for books out of print, of five nonpareil lines exclusive of address, in any issue except special numbers, to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents a line, and amoune should be inclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents a line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents a nonpareil line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter

All other small, undisplayed, advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents a nonpareil line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their communications.

BOOKS WANTED.

☞ In answering, please state edition, condition, and price, including postage or express charges.

Houses that are willing to deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash].

☞ Write your wants plainly and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as not having been received. The "Publishers' Weekly" does not hold itself responsible for errors.

It should be understood that the appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the "Publishers' Weekly" does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it is endeavored to safeguard these columns by withdrawing the privilege of their use from advertisers who are not "good pay," booksellers should take the usual precaution, as to advertisers not known to them, that they would take in making sales to any unknown parties.

Field Book of Wild Birds

And Their Music

By F. SCHUYLER MATHEWS, author of "Field Book of American Wild Flowers," etc.

With numerous reproductions of water colors and wash drawings of birds taken from nature, and complete musical notations of birds' songs variously rendered by the author.

16mo. With 53 full-page plates (38 colored) and numerous musical diagrams. Cloth, net, $2.00. Full flexible leather, net, $2.50. (Postage, 15 cts.)

A description of the songs and coloring of wild birds which will enable any one to identify the species common in the Eastern United States. Mr. Mathews has developed a new theory of mechanical rhythm in the music of different species which is the all-important factor in an unerring identification of a bird by ear alone. The book fills a place never before occupied by any volume devoted to bird study.

Bog-Trotting for Orchids

By GRACE GREYLOCK NILES

Illustrated from Photographs by Katherine Lewers and the Author.

8vo. With 24 colored and 48 other full-page illustrations. Net, $2.50. (By mail, $2.70.)

A charming description of plant life in the swamps of the Hoosac Valley (Vermont, New York, and Massachusetts). Readers will be surprised at the number and rare beauty of these native flowers.

OTHER BOOKS OF INTEREST TO NATURE LOVERS

A STRIKING NEW BOOK

By the Author of "My Lady Peggy Goes to Town"

A LITTLE TRAGEDY AT TIEN-TSIN

By FRANCES AYMAR MATHEWS

Owing to the unusual advance orders which were received from all parts of the country, the publisher twice increased the size of the first edition of this book, making it twice as large as originally planned. Now that the book is published the demand is so much on the increase that there is going to be great difficulty in keeping pace with it—by printing and binding books rapidly enough.

12mo, cloth, colored frontispiece, cover of black bats on a red background.

Duchess of Few Clothes

A COMEDY. By PHILIP PAYNE, author of "The Mills of Man."
Cloth, 12mo, 340 pp., $1.50.

"Duchess of Few Clothes" starts off with a jump and moves on like a play. A good story, well told, and genuinely funny. The February "Critic" says of "The Mills of Man," (now in its third edition), that it is never dull and has incontestable dramatic spirit.

Everyday Essays

By MARION FOSTER WASHBURNE. Illustrated with 15 full-page drawings by RUTH M. HALLOCK.
Cloth, small 12mo, 160 pp., $1.25.

A book of genial, buoyant, and sane observations upon simple, every-day life.
"Surely this is how one should face the new day—with a confident wonder, and a sweet readiness for all things it holds concealed."—From "Every Morning's Comedy," one of the essays.

The Promoters

A NOVEL WITHOUT A WOMAN. By WILLIAM HAWLEY SMITH, author of "The Evolution of Dodd," "Walks and Talks," "The New Hamlet," etc. With 8 full-page illustrations by J. C. GILBERT.
Cloth, 12mo, 367 pp., $1.50.

A humorous, yet impressive and dramatic satire of modern business life.
"Goldsby, old man, I am going to move the world! . . . We'll turn it where we please, when we please, and as we please! We'll settle the destiny of the people of the whole earth, and get a rake-off on everything they have to do with, or live on, or hope for! . . . How's that for a starter?"
—From "The Promoters."

RAND, McNALLY & COMPANY, CHICAGO AND NEW YORK.

Christopher Columbus Landed on Our Shores in 1492

There is a certain thing that has been done in this country only four times since then.

WHAT IS IT?

Well—that is something worth knowing. Can you guess? Probably not—and yet there is nothing with which you are more familiar.

HERE THEY ARE:

1st, Webster's (original unabridged International) Dictionary
2d, Worcester's Dictionary
3d, The Century Dictionary
4th, The Standard Dictionary

That's All—Only Four Complete American

Dictionaries of the English language issued in 412 years. It remained for GEO. W. OGILVIE to produce the 5th Complete American Dictionary,

Webster's Imperial Dictionary

THIS IS THE ONLY WEBSTER DICTIONARY in which common sense and discrimination have been shown by the editors in the use of capitals. In the Imperial all proper names begin with capitals and other words with small letters. It is strange that so important a feature should have been overlooked in all other Webster's—but it was. This is but one of hundreds of illustrations of the thoroughness with which Webster's Imperial has been prepared.

2200 Pages 3000 New Illustrations New Colored Plates
New from A to Z Reset from New Type
New Plates Thousands of New Words

AN ENTIRELY NEW WEBSTER'S DICTIONARY THAT DEFINES MORE WORDS THAN ANY PREVIOUS WEBSTER'S. WEBSTER'S "INTERNATIONAL," ITS IMMEDIATE PREDECESSOR, IS NOW 14 YEARS OLD, AND, AS A CONSEQUENCE, QUITE OUT OF DATE.

Webster's Imperial Dictionary is so new that you have to look in only one place for a word, and that is in its alphabetical order. It is absolutely new, and has no supplement—because it needs none. The entire work is complete, unabridged, and up-to-date in every particular.

IT WILL BE ISSUED IN June, 1904, by GEO. W. OGILVIE, Publisher 181 Monroe Street, Chicago, Ill.

Bibliographic Publications.

For all American books as they appear, take THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY; for an hour's glance each month at the important books and magazine papers, take LITERARY NEWS; for library matters take THE LIBRARY JOURNAL; for magazine articles in general, consult THE ANNUAL LITERARY INDEX; for books in print or issued of late years, see THE AMERICAN and ANNUAL CATALOGUES, also, the index to the PUBLISHERS' TRADE LIST ANNUAL for 1902 and the Index thereto.

THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY. Established in 1872, with which was incorporated the American Literary Gazette and Publishers' Circular (established in 1852.) Recognized as the representative of the publishing and bookselling interests in the United States. Contains full weekly record of American publications, with monthly cumulative indexes, etc. Subscription, $3.00 a year, postpaid; to foreign countries, postpaid, $4.00 a year; single numbers, except special numbers, 10 cents, postpaid.

THE LIBRARY JOURNAL. Official Organ of the American Library Association. Chiefly devoted to library economy and bibliography. Established in 1876. Published monthly. Subscription, $5.00 a year, postpaid; single numbers, 50 cents. Price to Europe, or other countries in the Union, 20s a year; single numbers, 2s. (LITERARY NEWS is sent free to subscribers of THE LIBRARY JOURNAL.) Teachers may be interested in the "School Number" published in the spring of each year.

GENERAL INDEX TO THE LIBRARY JOURNAL, vols. 1–22, 1876–1897. Arranged to serve as an index to succeeding volumes or for other sources of professional information. 4°, in sheets, or paper binding, $2.50; A. L. A. half leather, $3.00.

LITERARY NEWS. A Monthly Journal of Current Literature. Contains the freshest news concerning books and authors; lists of new publications; reviews and critical comments; characteristic extracts; sketches and anecdotes of authors; bibliographical references; prominent topics of the magazines; portraits of authors, and illustrations from the newest books, etc., etc. Subscription, $1.00 a year, postpaid; single numbers, 10 cents.

THE AMERICAN CATALOGUE of books in print and for sale July 1, 1876, compiled under the direction of F. LEYPOLDT, and its supplements, 1876–84, 1884–90, 1890–95, and 1895–1900, compiled under the editorial direction of R. R. BOWKER, aims to present all the bibliographical features of the books in the American market, arranged in the first part alphabetically by both authors and titles, and in the second part alphabetically by subjects.

The Catalogue and its supplementary volumes form the only approximately complete guide in existence to the American books of the day, so arranged as to make reference easy from whatever direction the inquiry may come, whether from that of the author, or the title, or the subject. It not only furnishes the desired information about any particular book of which the consulter is in search, but shows what others there are by the same author or on the same subject in which he is interested. To the bookseller, therefore, it is valuable both in filling orders and in stimulating business; to the librarian, in supplying gaps and proportioning his collection; and to all who are practically concerned with books, in furnishing information by a convenient method.

The author-and-title volume of the 1876 volume is out of print. A limited number of the subject volume may be had in half leather binding at $15.

The volumes covering the periods 1876–84 and 1884–90 are also out of print.

——, 1890–95, 4°, hf. mor., $15.

——, 1895–1900, 4°, hf. mor., $15.

THE ANNUAL AMERICAN CATALOGUE, Cumulated, containing yearly the monthly lists in THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, cumulated, giving in one alphabet, by author, title, and subject, information of the books issued during the years covered by the latest volume. It also contains a directory of publishers with full street addresses. The current volume covering 1900 to 1903, inclusive. 8vo, cloth, net, $4.00.

THE PUBLISHERS' TRADE LIST ANNUAL. Contains: The latest catalogues of upwards of 300 American publishers. These lists, all bound in one volume arranged alphabetically for ready reference, with marginal index, guiding the finger at once to the right letter, present in their combination so convenient and time-saving a working-tool as to make it indispensable to every one who has any interest in the purchase or sale of books. Large 8vo, cloth, without index, net, $2.00; with Supplementary Index, 1903, 2 v., 8°, net, $4.50.

INDEX TO THE PUBLISHERS' TRADE LIST ANNUAL, 1902, contains an index, by author, title and subject catchword to the lists of the 246 publishers represented in the Catalogues volume of the PUBLISHERS' TRADE LIST ANNUAL for 1902, furnishing by means of 140,000 entries, ready reference to the books of the leading publishers in print July 1, 1902, and to forthcoming books of which they could furnish information in August of that year. 1 v., 8°, cl., net $5.00. Supplementary Index for 1903. 1 v., 8°, cl., net, $2.50. The two volumes bound in one, $6.

THE ANNUAL LITERARY INDEX, including Periodicals, American and English; Essays, Book, Chapters, etc., with Author-Index, Bibliographies, Necrology and Index to Dates of Principal Events. Edited, with the coöperation of members of the American Library Association and of The Library Journal staff, by W. I. FLETCHER and R. R. BOWKER. 8°. cloth, $3.50.

THE AMERICAN EDUCATIONAL CATALOGUE. Contains a price-list of all the text-books in use in the United States, arranged alphabetically by author's or editor's name, and a detailed subject-index, referring from each specific subject to authors of books on that subject. 8vo, leatherette, 50 cents.

THE ENGLISH CATALOGUE [Annual] giving full titles classified under author and subject in one strict alphabet, with particulars of the size, price, month of publication, and name of publisher of the books issued in Great Britain and Ireland, in the calendar year, being a continuation of the "London" and "British" Catalogues. [London: Sampson Low, Marston & Co.] 8vo, cloth, net, $1.50. THE ENGLISH CATALOGUE and THE ANNUAL AMERICAN CATALOGUE, 1900–1903, bound in one volume, cloth, $5.00.

PUBLICATIONS OF SOCIETIES: a provisional list of the publications of American scientific, literary, and other societies from their organization. Compiled under the editorial direction of R. R. BOWKER. Schedules over 1100 societies issuing publications, and gives title-entries of all their publications, as far as data could be obtained from the societies and from libraries. 4°, paper, $2.50; cloth, $3.00.

STATE PUBLICATIONS: a provisional list of the official publications of the several States of the United States from their organization. Compiled under the editorial direction of R. R. BOWKER. Pt. 1: New England States—Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut. Pt. 2: North Central States—New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin. 4°. (For complete work, $5.00.)

THE PROFESSION OF BOOKSELLING: a handbook of practical hints for the apprentice and bookseller. By A. GROWOLL, managing editor of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, and author of "A Bookseller's Library," "Book-trade Bibliography in the United States in the XIXth Century," etc. Pts. 1 and 2. 8°, bds., each, $2.00. THE WORDS OF JOHN ROBINSON

Is the title of a new leaflet, No. 142 in the Old South Series. It contains Robinson's farewell address to the Pilgrims when they left Holland. Two other leaflets, "Bradford's Memoirs of Elder Brewster" and "Bradford's First Dialogue" relate directly to the Pilgrim fathers.

Second Large Printing before Publication

Mr. Morgan's long-expected novel is ready for immediate delivery. We thought that there would be big advance orders for this story of the days of Clay, Webster, and Lincoln, and a good many dealers agreed with us. But the orders were bigger than we anticipated. So we went to press again with the novel, and are now ready to fill all orders.

The Issue

THE book has a frontispiece, and five drawings by George A. Williams
